Preparing Nursing Systems for 2020 New Approaches – New Evidence

Rodd Bond confirmed as Keynote Speaker!

Rodd Bond is the Director of the Netwell Centre in the Dundalk Institute of Technology in Ireland. The Netwell Centre, founded in 2006, pursues a broad range of research projects examining the fusion of social networks, environments and technologies to enhance longer-living in smarter places. In November 2011, the Netwell Centre launched in collaboration with the Health Service Executive (HSE) and Ulster University in the UK, a new programme called 'Places to Flourish', a pattern-based approach to foster change in residential care.

Rodd Bond is architect by background and has a more than 10 year's track-record in managing as IT company owner large ICT projects and software developments, including Middle East countries. In Ireland, he is the past President of Dundalk Chamber of Commerce and managed Dundalk's participation in the WHO Age-Friendly Cities Project, which has evolved into the Louth Age-Friendly County Strategy. Today, Rodd Bond is a member of the Universal Access and Independent Living expert group in Age-Platform Europe.

At the IOS World Congress, his speech on "Redefining ICT - Integrated Care Transformation" is scheduled for Sunday, May 13, 2012, 10:50-11:30 h
